Description

Three-light hot-water bottle lamp with a frame featuring three dolphins in gilded bronze, in the Empire style from the late 19th century. The bowl-shaped base is finely chased, as are the shaft and the arms. The three branches are shaped like dolphins. The lampshade, made of sheet metal originally painted green, is decorated with a frieze of gilded foliage. The lamp arms end in duckbill-shaped finials. The lampshade is adjustable via an arrow-shaped screw. The central stem is topped by a bronze eagle. The electrical system is in working order.
