Description

Silver monstrance-reliquary housing a reliquary of the Holy Cross. Probably 19th century. H. 16.5 cm. Stated silver weight: 100 g. Poorly engraved, illegible hallmarks. A square, stepped base edged with a row of beads, surmounted by a curved, tapered stem with a spherical knot. The upper section is rectangular, glazed on both sides, and crowned with a low pediment and a cross pattée. Set against a red textile background, an oval reliquary with a gold-colored setting, containing a relic presented as a fragment of the Holy Cross, arranged in the shape of a cross on a dark background and adorned with rays. On the reverse, a red wax seal bearing a coat of arms.
