studied at the Marseille School of Fine Arts. In 1880, he won first prizes in painting and drawing, and the Jules Cantini Prize the following year. From 1880 to 1905, he exhibited at the Salon des Artistes Français and the Salon d'Automne in Paris. It was primarily through portraiture and landscape painting that he demonstrated his talent. He was greatly influenced by the painter Adolphe Monticelli, whom he admired. All of our objects bear the traces of their history.
