Description

Restoration-style walnut bench - 19th century A very beautiful and elegant Restoration-style walnut bench from the 19th century. This bench features a magnificent, undulating backrest with harmonious curves, as well as two enveloping armrests, lending it great elegance. Its walnut frame has a beautiful patina and attractive grain, particularly visible on its lower front panel, which is adorned with a large molded panel. It rests on four slightly curved legs. The upholstery has been completely restored using a very attractive fabric with a polychrome floral pattern on a black background, accented with a studded finish. This bench offers a generous and comfortable seat, while retaining the charm and elegance of Restoration-period furniture. A beautiful 19th-century piece, ideal for a living room,
