Dutch Delft Blue And White 'talking Plate', De Porceleyne Schotel, 1724-1764

300 EUR

Period : 18th century

Condition : Bon état

Material : Earthenware

Diameter : 23

Description

Delft earthenware plate bearing a humorous inscription taken from a French song. Made of tin-glazed earthenware, decorated in shades of blue, featuring a cursive inscription in the center surmounted by the title "Vaudeville 2." The rim is adorned with elongated floral cartouches alternating with small circular medallions containing star motifs, on a checkered background.This "talking plate" bears a verse evoking a young nun who, weary of convent life, calls out to passersby from her window. The verse is followed by a rhythmic refrain centered on the word "mirliton." The reverse bears the mark of Jan Pennis, owner of the De Porceleyne Schotel factory from 1724 to 1764.Inscription:Vaudeville 2A young nun,Tired of the convent,From atop her lattice

Dealer

JustLoveAntiques
Antiquités
Mobile : 0614898928

Delfgauwseweg 197
Delft 2628

windowCalled out to all passersby.I have some mirliton, mirliton,Mirlitaine,I have some mirliton, don don.Condition: chips and loss of enamel around the rim, with slight signs of wear and superficial scratches in the center.