Description

A rolling bar cabinet dating from the 1950s-1960s, resting on four tapered, slightly angled legs fitted with casters. The front features a wood veneer with a pronounced grain, arranged in four panels with alternating grain directions, forming a geometric pattern. A curved metal handle opens the drop-down flap, which unfolds horizontally to form a serving surface. Its interior is lined with a glass panel. The interior compartment includes two small side shelves for storing glasses and accessories, as well as a central space for bottles. The top shelf is also protected by a glass panel. The cabinet is in good overall condition, with signs of use. The glass on the top shelf has a slight chip. Period: 1950s-1960s Style: modernist / vintage Origin: European-made, unidentified
