Description

DEIDEIR - Treatise on Theoretical and Practical Perspective. Paris, Published by Charles-Antoine Jombert, 1770; in-4, IV-124 pp. + 15 plates, contemporary full marbled calfskin binding, spine decorated with 5 raised bands, edges painted red, title label in beige morocco leather, one split jaw. 15 fold-out plates. Abbé Deidier (Marseille 1698-Paris 1746¹) was a mathematician and professor at the artillery school in La Fère. After serving as tutor to Louis-Ferdinand de Croÿ, Abbé Deidier wrote Le Parfait Ingénieur français, a work on the fortification methods of, among others, Sébastien Le Prestre de Vauban. First published anonymously in Amsterdam in 1734, this work was reprinted several times.
