Description

Officer's belt of the Chasseurs à pied, also known as the Chasseurs de Vincennes. Made of black patent leather, with brass hardware featuring oval buckles embossed with a hunting horn resting on two laurel branches. They are connected by an S-shaped hook representing a cable. The belt is complete with its two suspension straps for the unmodified Model 1838 saber--that is, the version with two belt loops--and features hooks for attaching the saber to its scabbard. A loop allowing the saber to be suspended at the side at the top of the first sling strap. This belt is complete and in very good condition. N.B.: The 1845 belt sets that have retained their two sling straps, as used during the July Monarchy and the Second Empire, are quite rare.
