Description

Exceptional silk hallway rug - India (Kashmir), circa 1980 - Compartmentalized patterns and "Garden of Paradise" motifs 315 x 78 cm Let yourself be captivated by the refined elegance and prestige of this superb silk hallway rug, hand-knotted in India around 1980. This rug is distinguished by its traditional "Bakhtiar" or "Garden of Paradise" motif, structured into compartments or architectural panels. Each panel features motifs of trees of life, nymphs, vases of flowers, and delicately rendered arches. Its palette of luminous pastel colors--blending shades of powdery pink, almond green, and ivory with touches of terracotta red--gives it a great softness and an incomparable radiance. Thanks to its elongated format (315 x 78 cm) and 100% silk composition, this exceptional piece is ideal for
