Description

"Terre d'Eclance" / "Charenton" vegetable tureen with its underplate. An Art Nouveau piece, produced around 1900. An exceptional item in very good condition regarding both the gilding and the enamel; only a single small chip on the rim of the tureen itself is worth noting. Also of note are two small gilded flowers featured on both the underplate and the lid. Dimensions: Underplate diameter 27.3 cm; Tureen height (including handle) 15.5 cm, length 31 cm, diameter 23 cm. The stamp was used from 1900 onwards to identify art pieces--primarily vases and pitchers--produced by the Grès d'Art (art stoneware) manufactory. This tureen is a rare find. The town of Eclance supplied excellent clay for production, while the company itself was located in Charenton-le-Pont. The business closed
