Description

This drop-leaf desk is an example crafted from mahogany and maple. The piece stands out for its architectural silhouette and the striking contrast between its dark exterior and its light, intricately detailed interior. The structure is clad in flamed mahogany veneer, whose rich grain is arranged in a mirror pattern, creating a striking visual effect. When opened, the flap reveals an interior of speckled maple, a light and precious wood species. This workspace is lined with green leather and features several small drawers and compartments, some of which are adorned with delicate inlaid patterns. The secretary desk features an authentic patina that bears witness to its history and use over the years. The gilded brass hardware, including the lock plates and handles, is original and complements the refined
