Description

An elegant and imposing Art Deco cabinet from the 1930s-1940s, featuring beautiful design with rounded lines and remarkable wood grain patterns. Its front consists of four doors, including two large, solid side doors with generously curved shapes, framing two central doors adorned with mirrors. The veneers, likely walnut, display superb natural patterns, particularly visible on the side panels. The rounded forms, solid stiles, and balanced proportions lend the piece a presence that is both monumental and elegant. The central doors are adorned with circular metal and glass handles, characteristic of the decorative style of the period. The interior of the side compartments features several shelves, whose slightly curved edges are accented with delicate geometric marquetry. A beautiful piece of cabinetry,
