Description

A delicate and evocative image of Marian devotion, this beeswax bust of the Virgin Mary, dating from the early 19th century, stands out for the refinement of its modeling. The bust belongs to the tradition of devotional wax sculpture, an art form prized for its ability to render facial features, the folds of drapery, and the nuances of the skin with extraordinary delicacy. Wax, a material particularly sensitive to light and color variations, allows for an intimate and naturalistic rendering. On the back is a capital letter F engraved, a signature that has not yet been identified. Dimensions: 22H × 19L × 12P cm Weight: 550 g Shipping: International shipping available.
