Description

This elegant Louis XVI-style piano bench perfectly embodies the refinement and geometric precision of French Neoclassicism. Resting on an elegant, tapered, and fully fluted base, its carved wooden legs are adorned with a sumptuous gold leaf patina that subtly catches the light. The body of the piece is accented by a delicate frieze and punctuated at the corners by connecting blocks adorned with finely carved rosettes, a testament to exceptional artisanal craftsmanship. The rectangular seat features traditional cane weaving, offering visual lightness, comfort, and sturdiness. A truly charming piece with a timeless aesthetic, this versatile piece is ideally suited as an occasional bench, a prestigious footstool, or a centerpiece in a refined entryway.Period: Early 20th
