Description

Exceptional Louis XVI bedroom set in light mahogany with marquetry, Napoleon III period - 19th century A magnificent and rare Louis XVI-style bedroom set from the Napoleon III era, 19th century, crafted from light mahogany and richly decorated with marquetry and numerous gilded bronze accents. This set consists of four pieces: a large mirrored wardrobe, two matching beds, and a nightstand. The quality of this bedroom set lies in its remarkable cabinetmaking, featuring superb mahogany grain patterns arranged in butterfly-wing motifs, highlighted by delicate marquetry friezes and burl wood frames. The pieces are richly adorned with gilded bronze fittings featuring foliage motifs, garlands, and decorative ornaments, lending the set a great deal of elegance. The large three-door cabinet features a particularly interesting detail: it has two beveled mirrors, one on the outside and the other on the inside of a door, allowing for dual use. Its interior offers numerous storage shelves as well as drawers in the lower section. The two matching beds feature beautiful headboards and footboards, adorned with light mahogany panels displaying magnificent symmetrical grain patterns, framed by marquetry and accented with gilded bronze hardware. Their fluted posts, turned legs, and beautiful proportions evoke the elegance of the Louis XVI style. The matching nightstand harmoniously completes this set. It features a drawer at the top and a door on the front, also decorated with marquetry and bronze trim. A truly beautiful 19th-century bedroom set, remarkable for its uniformity, its rich decoration, and the quality of its wood.
