Description

A large, trumpet-shaped vase made of multilayered glass, with a slender body and a widely flared neck, resting on a circular pedestal. Decorated with blooming poppies, accompanied by flower buds, stems, and foliage, etched and finished with a wheel. The flowers, in shades of red and pink, stand out against a translucent background with golden yellow, orange, and pink hues. The flared neck has a slightly hammered appearance, while the lower section, with its darker tones, contrasts with those of the body. The signature is discreet, engraved in intaglio. The photos are unretouched. Only sunlight illuminates the vase to reveal its magnificent design. A video of the vase spinning in the sunlight is available on my Instagram page: michael_delaby_antiquités
