400 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : En l'etat

Material : Porcelain

Description

A substantial pair of Japanese porcelain vases--Imari or Arita type (featuring Kakiemon, Gosu, or Kutani-style enamels)--highly representative of export ware from the Edo or Meiji periods. They feature an elegant, flared neck ending in a scalloped, wavy rim. The body is teardrop or gourd-shaped, with a bulbous base. The upper neck is decorated with rich floral motifs in polychrome enamels--specifically peonies and lush green foliage--painted against the white porcelain background. The central body displays large reserved cartouches or medallions outlined in iron-red. Inside the main medallion is a figurative scene depicting Japanese nobles dressed in fine traditional attire (patterned kimonos and haori jackets). The design also includes a simplified background landscape
