Description

A rare and exceptionally elegant vintage Graff diamond-set cocktail wristwatch, crafted in 18-karat yellow gold and distinguished by its substantial integrated textured mesh bracelet. Weighing approximately 71 grams, the watch has the presence of an important piece of fine gold jewellery, combining Graff's understated dial design with an elaborate sculptural case and bracelet. The oval watch head is surrounded by a beautifully textured and ribbed yellow gold bezel. signed "Graff" beneath the 12 o'clock position and "SWISS" at the lower edge. A pair of elegant tapered yellow gold hands completes the restrained dial design. The case flows seamlessly into a broad, flexible 18-karat yellow gold mesh bracelet, finely textured to complement the sculptural finish of the bezel. This integrated construction gives the watch the appearance of a substantial gold bracelet when worn. The solid yellow gold caseback is numbered 56724 and 32226. The bracelet terminates in a concealed fold-over clasp decorated with a geometric textured emblem. The interior is stamped "750", confirming 18-karat gold, together with the RCK sponsor's mark and additional assay marks. With its approximately 71-gram gross weight, diamond-set bezel, dramatic black dial and integrated gold bracelet, this is a particularly striking example of a vintage Graff jewellery watch and an impressive statement piece in its own right.
