Description

Table-top oil and vinegar set made from a single piece of hot-worked glass, featuring a central container adorned with a large bulb with twisted ribs and a tall ring-shaped handle, supporting two ribbed bottles flanked by two side receptacles designed to hold the stoppers during service. Both bottles have fluted sides and are complete with their original stoppers. A rough, irregular pontil mark is visible beneath the center piece. Normandy, late 18th century. Dimensions: height 29.5 cm - width 18 cm. A rare piece, complete and in very good overall condition. A slight crack, likely caused by firing (thermal shock), is present at the junction of one of the handles; however, it does not affect the piece's structural integrity. In-person handover preferred.
