600 EUR

Period : 18th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Painted wood

Description

The object is a polychrome wooden sculpture of the body of Jesus Christ (a Corpus Christi). It is a woodcarving that retains clear traces of its original polychrome paint, particularly on the loincloth (loincloth or drape), which features shades of blue, light blue, and gold. o Style and Period: The anatomical rendering and the drapery (wrapped around the hips with a pronounced knot) point to the Italian sculptural school, with stylistic characteristics dating from the late 17th century to the 18th century (High Baroque). The position of the arms, outstretched to form a pronounced "V," and the well-defined musculature of the torso reflect the influence of the classical and expressive models typical of the central Italian or Ligurian tradition. HEIGHT: 56

CM - ARM WIDTH: 40 CM
