Description

An antique, large laurel wreath made of gilded metal dating from the second half of the 19th century, composed of intertwined oak branches, finely veined leaves, and small acorns. The wreath is adorned on the back with a circular medallion decorated with foliage, framed by knotted, flowing ribbons. A symbol of strength, merit, and glory since antiquity, the oak wreath was notably used in the 19th century as an honorary symbol during ceremonies, competitions, or award ceremonies. This wreath could also have been intended to adorn a bust or statue, in the tradition of laurel and oak wreaths presented to honored figures. 19th-century French work. Diameter: 18 cm. Height: 9 cm.
