Description

Baroque mirror in carved and silver-plated wood, 18th century
A striking Baroque-style mirror, crafted from finely carved and silver-plated wood, characterized by an architecturally striking structure and a rich repertoire of Rococo-inspired ornamentation. The composition is centered around the rectangular central mirror, framed by shaped side panels embellished with elaborate decorations featuring plant motifs and sinuous leafy tendrils. The upper section features a richly decorated cornice with opposing volutes, acanthus leaves, and rocaille motifs, structured around three oval elements arranged on different levels, which give the mirror a dynamic and monumental profile. The relief decoration is particularly refined, characterized by intertwined plant motifs, curls, and finely crafted ornamental motifs that stand out against the gilded surface with its warm, burnished tones. The surface features a finely hatched latticework background, upon which ornamental reliefs in pastiglia are rendered, depicting plant tendrils, volutes, and small decorative anthropomorphic figures. The patina of age contributes to the piece's antique charm, enhancing its authentic character and decorative richness. Condition: good; a small curl is missing on the left side of the cornice (see detailed photo). With a striking visual presence, this mirror is a highly evocative piece of furniture, ideal for historic settings, stately homes, and classically styled interiors, where it can take center stage. Period: 18th century Style: Baroque, with Rococo elements Material: carved and silver-plated wood Type: mirror with shaped cornice Dimensions: 134.5 x 99 cm - thickness 12 cm
