Ercole Magrotti (1890-1967) studied art for a time in Milan and then in Rome, but he is primarily considered a self-taught artist. The artist is renowned for his views of Italian landscapes, particularly his Alpine and lake scenes, as well as his seascapes and views of Venetian canals. He used a very lively technique with generous impasto and a thick palette knife. Beautiful silver-plated wooden frame by Maison Delf from the 1970s. Good condition. 890 euros.
