Description

An Erivan rug, hand-knotted from wool in Armenia around 1980, this piece measures 135 cm wide by 220 cm long (245 cm including the fringes). In perfect condition. The Armenian capital is home to several workshops. Yerevan rugs combine Caucasian geometric patterns with floral motifs inspired by Persia. Red, orange, and yellow dominate. Typical of the Armenian highlands, they exude a sunny warmth unique to these designs. Yerevan (Erivan), the capital of Armenia, is characterized by its imposing Soviet-era architecture. The Matenadaran Library, which houses thousands of ancient Greek and Armenian manuscripts, dominates the city's main avenue. Republic Square is the bustling heart of the city, with its musical fountains and columned government buildings. The History
