Description

Description: Wrought iron, black patina and gold gilding, handmade paper. It is very rare to find small, handheld objects made of wrought iron; Poillerat, for example, created almost exclusively furniture or large decorative objects. This paperweight consists of a plate with guilloché-patterned edges. It features a handle in two symmetrical parts. Each handle is openwork at the bottom, with the openings adorned with raised balls of decreasing size. A spiral with several coils forms the upper part of the handles. This object is a blacksmith's masterpiece. Conditions: Good conditions; lacquer and 24-karat gold leaf gilding have been restored. The entire piece has been re-patinated.
