Description

An elegant Louis XVI-style chest of drawers, second half of the 18th century. It features beautiful proportions and remarkable marquetry work. The front opens to reveal two drawers adorned with rich geometric cube-pattern marquetry, crafted from woods of various species and shades, creating a superb effect of perspective and relief. The fronts are accented with contrasting wooden moldings, highlighting the finesse of the cabinetmaking. It rests on four straight, tapered legs, characteristic of the Louis XVI style. Beautiful brass hardware consisting of drop handles and lock plates. It is topped with a red marble slab veined with white, lending an elegant harmony to the piece as a whole. This commode captivates with the richness of its marquetry, its relatively compact dimensions, and
