Description

18-karat yellow gold brooch-pendant -
Cornucopia - Iran, early 20th century
A lovely oval medallion brooch in 18-karat yellow gold (750 parts per thousand), of Iranian origin, dating from the early 20th century. Description This piece stands out for the richness and finesse of its goldsmithing, characteristic of Persian jewelry traditions. At the center, a cornucopia in high relief--a symbol of prosperity, fertility, and wealth--spills forth a profusion of delicately chiseled flowers and foliage. The composition combines remarkable filigree work, granulation, and applied floral motifs, creating a particularly lush and refined design. The central medallion is surrounded by a wide openwork border, entirely adorned with small flowers, scrollwork, and twisted gold threads, attesting to the meticulous
