Description

The oval-shaped bowl, spacious and generously flared, whose supple lines are accentuated by a delicately gadrooned rim. Two elegantly coiled side handles, with sinuous and skillfully designed curves, harmoniously extend the flow of the bowl and lend the piece a remarkable decorative presence. The body rests on a curved stem, adorned with relief motifs, which flares out onto a pedestal with a quadrilobed base. This richly carved base combines successive moldings with a profusion of foliage, stylized leaves, and symmetrical scrollwork. The whole rests on delicately curved feet, which enhance the architectural elegance of the composition. The chiseling constitutes one of the major attractions of this piece. Exhibiting great finesse, it displays a lush ornamental repertoire of volutes,
