Description

St. Francis of Paola Oil on canvas 17th-century Neapolitan From the circle of Francesco Fracanzano (Monopoli, 1612 - Naples, 1656) Canvas: 100 x 80 Frame: 105 x 85 cm Excellent condition The painting depicts St. Anthony of Paola, one of the most venerated saints in Southern Italy, captured in a moment of great intensity. His gaze is directed upward toward a light bearing the inscription "CHARITAS." The face of the hermit saint is rendered with excellent brushwork--precise and vigorous--that brings this charismatic figure to life. The artist is a prominent exponent of the 17th-century Neapolitan school, an artistic movement distinguished by its portraiture of religious figures in markedly sacred tones. In particular, there are several similarities with the works of
