Description

Elegant French Art Deco side table dating from the 1920s, crafted in solid wood with refined architectural lines and restrained decorative detailing. The rectangular top rests above a frieze embellished with a continuous carved bead molding, lending subtle texture and sophistication to the design. The table stands on four tapered and fluted legs, accented at the upper corners with finely carved geometric and floral motifs that reflect the decorative language of the Art Deco period. An X-shaped stretcher connects the legs, providing both stability and a striking visual element that enhances the table's balanced proportions. Its warm wood grain and understated ornamentation make this piece highly versatile, suitable as a side table, lamp table, occasional table, or decorative accent in both traditional and
