Description

Description :An elegant antique French table mirror dating from the early 20th century, featuring a beautifully elaborate silvered metal frame inspired by the decorative elegance of the Louis XV Rococo style.The gracefully shaped frame displays an intricate arrangement of scrolling foliage, stylised acanthus leaves, floral motifs and asymmetrical curves, creating a richly ornamental composition. Its sculptural decoration is particularly attractive at the crest, where a prominent scrolling flourish rises above the mirror, complemented by delicate floral detailing.The silvered finish has developed a charming patina, with subtle variations in tone and darker accents within the relief decoration, beautifully highlighting the depth and craftsmanship of the moulded ornamentation.The shaped mirror plate features an attractive bevelled edge, following the flowing contours of the surrounding frame. Its reflective surface displays gentle signs of age, adding to the authentic character and decorative appeal of the piece.The reverse retains a fitted backing and an elegant folding metal easel support, allowing the mirror to stand independently on a dressing table, vanity, console or bedroom chest of drawers.A charming and sophisticated decorative accessory, combining the romantic elegance of French Rococo revival design with the practical appeal of an antique vanity mirror. Its beautifully detailed silhouette makes it equally attractive as a functional dressing mirror or a decorative accent in a traditional or contemporary interior.Dimensions:W. 28 cm / 11.02 inH. 46 cm / 18.11 inD. 5 cm / 1.97 in
