Description

Description :This charming 19th-century antique copper bed warmer is a beautiful example of traditional domestic craftsmanship, combining practical functionality with refined decorative detailing.Entirely crafted from copper, the circular body features a beautifully pierced and engraved domed lid, decorated with concentric bands of geometric motifs, delicate floral patterns, small circular openings and gracefully curved cut-outs. These carefully arranged perforations were originally designed to allow warmth to circulate while retaining the heated embers inside.The hinged lid opens to reveal a deep circular compartment, showing an authentic aged interior with natural oxidation and traces of its original use. The exterior copper surface displays a rich, warm patina, with subtle
