Description

Elegant pair of finely crafted biscuit porcelain busts, depicting two of Queen Victoria's children: the future King Edward VII and Princess Alice of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha. Both busts feature inscriptions identifying the subjects. The future King is shown in regal attire with a hairstyle characteristic of the period, while the Princess is depicted with a glimpse of her dress and a delicate garland of flowers adorning her head. These pieces are inspired by two renowned works from the second half of the 19th century, as noted by the inscriptions on the reverse: the bust of Princess Alice was created by the English sculptor Mary Thornycroft, while the bust of King Edward
