Description

An elegant Art Nouveau-style wooden console table, crafted at the turn of the 19th and 20th centuries from carved and stained beech wood. This piece is a remarkable example of European Art Nouveau furniture, where the expressiveness of the structure is combined with ornamentation inspired by organic forms. Resting on tall, slender legs joined by gracefully curved crossbars, the console table stands out for its visual lightness and the elegance of its proportions. The openwork side panels, with their supple and sinuous lines, are embellished with delicate, hand-carved floral motifs. The fluid contours, organic silhouettes, and stylized floral motifs perfectly embody the aesthetic principles of Art Nouveau, in which furniture becomes a work of art in its own right.
