Description

A large terracotta bust with a nuanced bronze patina, created by the sculptor Otto Petri for the prestigious Austro-Viennese manufacturer Goldscheider. This powerful work depicts a warrior with a martial and haughty expression, wearing a helmet adorned with a spread-winged eagle and side masks featuring the head of a Gorgon. The bust rests on a sculpted base reminiscent of the volute of an ancient capital. A testament to great craftsmanship, this work of art captivates with the finesse of its details and the expressive intensity of the figure. The helmet bears the artist's engraved signature, while the inner back reveals the stamped mark of the Goldscheider manufactory, the inscription, and the original model number 2579. Art Nouveau period. One wing of the helmet has been restored.
