Description

Painting, oil on canvas, depicting "The Town Hall of the Free Commune" on Sunday, May 15, 1949--11 Rue du Chanez in Paris 75016. This scene depicts a gathering or a municipal/community council meeting in front of a sign bearing the inscription "Mairie de la Commune Libre."The "free communes" were folkloric or carnival-like republics created in various French neighborhoods (such as Montmartre and elsewhere) featuring mock mayors, costumes, and satirical marching bands.We can make out several costumed figures, tricolor sashes, and a child--here portrayed by actor Patrick PRÉJEAN--accompanied by his parents, Albert PRÉJEAN and Lysiane REY, who are also both actors.On the right, we see a figure dressed in a uniform with a bicorne hat or a
