Description

A charming little Louis XIII-style sideboard made of solid walnut. It rests on four straight legs topped with a wide molding. The front opens with a large door featuring beautiful fluted diamond-point carving. The top is adorned with a "bec de corbin" molding along its edge. At the top of the back of the piece, a paneled pediment topped by a wide, straight molding serves as a shelf. A fine piece from the late 19th-early 20th century, featuring an antique door from the late 17th-early 18th century, which shows signs of wear and wood-boring insects (see photos).
