Description

Early 19th-century English mahogany bookcase, embellished with elegant maple inlays and ebony and maple trim. The upper section features glass-paned doors with tapered profiles, offering three height-adjustable interior shelves, ideal for displaying books or works of art. The base features four drawers, the top one of which has a drop-down front with a leather insert, revealing a cabinet with eight drawers, six open compartments, and three doors. The cantilevered legs ensure stability, while the Indian rosewood knobs and bone inlays add a touch of refinement. The flush-mounted vents complete the design, making this piece a fine example of high-quality craftsmanship from that era.Product condition:Due to its age and wear, this item requires restoration and refinishing.
