vedutistic tradition of the first half of the 19th century.The painting depicts St. Mark's Square as seen from the interior portico of the Palazzo Ducale: the large Istrian stone arches frame the open piazza, animated by figures in 19th-century dress, street vendors, and passers-by. In the background, the Torre dell'Orologio and the Procuratie facades are rendered with attention to their rhythmic arcading. The light, warm and diffuse, creates a sharp contrast between the shadows of the portico and the brightness of the square. The staffage figures recall the repertoire of Romantic Venetian vedutism, executed with a confident and fluid touch.Condition report: Original canvas.
