BRONZE "CHILONG" DRAGON BOTTLE VASE - CHINA, 17TH CENTURY

Description: Patinated bronze bottle vase from a scholar's study, dating from the 17th century (Ming-Qing Transition Period). The piece features a flattened, globular body resting on a short, molded circular base. The long, slender cylindrical neck flares delicately toward a small, rimmed spout. The shoulder and neck are adorned with a superb high-relief decoration depicting a hornless dragon (Chilong) with a sinuous and dynamic silhouette. The mythical creature wraps itself around the neck in an upward motion, its head raised, while its long, forked tail elegantly coils around the body. Period: China 17th century (Late Ming Dynasty / Early Qing Dynasty) Patina: Very beautiful, nuanced original patina, brown
