Description

The Oharame (???, literally "women of Ohara") were traditional street vendors from the village of Ohara, north of Kyoto. They were known for carrying firewood or bundles of kindling on their heads to sell in the city streets, wearing a distinctive traditional costume characterized by a white cloth (tenugui) tied around their heads, sleeves rolled up with sashes (tasuki), and an indigo-blue robe.Kunitaro Teramatsu was a Western-style painter born in Kurashiki. In 1900, he moved to Tokyo, where he studied Western painting at Shotaro Koyama's Fudosha School. In 1903, he returned to Okayama and worked as an art teacher at Shizutani Junior High School. However, in 1906, inspired by the style of Chu Asai (Tadashi Asai), he moved to Kyoto and enrolled at the Kansai Academy of Fine Arts
