landscape. In the foreground, a rocky terrain depicts the Provençal garrigue with impasto and textural depth, guiding the eye through the trees toward a hilltop village dominated by its bell tower. The color palette is vibrant, blending the ochres of the harvested fields, the deep greens of the olive trees and cypresses, and the soft blue of the hills on the horizon beneath a cloudy sky. The work is distinguished by a highly structured, generous, and masterful touch applied with a palette knife and brush--characteristic of the artist's assertive, mature style. Artist's Biography: Charles CHARDAR (1885-1969) was a French painter associated with the Post-Impressionist movement. Active throughout the first half and the middle of the 20th century, he distinguished himself through regional landscapes (notably Provence and Occitanie) as well as still lifes. His painting is characterized by a focus on materiality, texture, and the rendering of natural light. Dimensions without frame: 60 cm / 46 cm. With frame: 68 cm / 54 cm.
