Description

A plum-colored painted wooden tea table with Japanese-style decorations on the tabletop; its overall shape evokes the Louis XV period. This small side table features a rectangular top with scalloped, raised edges, adorned with two handles, resting on a curved Louis XV-style base. The tabletop's design features three cranes flying over a lakeside landscape, rendered in golden yellow on a plum-colored background; some elements are slightly raised in relief. The proportions and lightness of the piece are designed to make it easily portable and suitable for placement anywhere. This piece can be dated to the late 19th century; the use of Asian motifs combined with European forms reflects a distinct taste among the public at the turn of the century. The overall condition is good; the
