Description

Each sconce is organised around a vertical brass escutcheon plate, topped with a radiating palmette, centred with a large finely chased blossoming rosette and ending at the bottom with a second rosette and a pendant palmette. Three light arms in graceful curves, adorned with ribboned leaves, detach from it, ending in moulded dishes and candle nozzles fitted with faux candles. The vocabulary of rosettes, palmettes and water leaves belongs to the Neoclassical repertoire inherited from the Louis XVI and Empire styles, here interpreted by the French bronziers of the 1950s, who perpetuated with skill the great tradition of bronze and brass lighting. Condition report: Good overall condition. Brass with a fine gilded patina, crisp chasing, old faux candles. A pair generous in light, ideal on
