Description

A large gilded and patinated bronze mantel clock from the Restoration period, featuring two figures at the top: the man appears to be an artist; he is depicted seated, holding a painter's palette in his hand. His curly hair peeks out from under a hat with a wide plume. He is dressed in a Renaissance costume consisting of a fitted doublet, an ornate collar, breeches, and cuffed boots. At his side, a woman in a dress stands, leaning slightly toward him. Their proximity and gestures suggest an exchange between the two figures... Read more.
