Description

? HISTORY & DESIGNContinuously adjustable lounge chair, model LC4, designed in 1928 by Le Corbusier, Pierre Jeanneret, and Charlotte Perriand, and presented at the 1929 Salon d'Automne. Originally produced by Thonet under the model number B306, it has been manufactured by Cassina since 1965. The bent steel tube frame rests freely on a separate base: the recline is achieved by simply sliding the seat, without any mechanism, according to the principle of the "resting machine" formulated by Le Corbusier.?
