Description

Set of 12 Maison Regain chairs, designed by Roland Haeusler, from the La Cascade residence in Les Arcs. Chairs with a distinctly Cubist design, created by Roland Haeusler (winner of the René Gabriel Prize in 1973) and produced by Maison Regain, in honey-stained solid wood. The backrest, formed by two wide horizontal crossbars, and the seat, split into two slightly curved, adjoining slats, create a geometric and streamlined silhouette typical of the formal vocabulary of 1960s-1970s mountain architecture. The straight legs and uprights, assembled without embellishment, reinforce this architectural interpretation of the chair. These chairs are part of the furnishings of La Cascade, a complex of terraced apartments in the Les Arcs 1600 ski resort in Savoie. This piece was selected
