Description

Shaped like a baluster resting on a slender base, the coffee pot consists of four separate sections, each accentuated by long, slender triangles running from the top to the base. The neck is fluted, and the zoomorphic spout is shaped like a, and the domed lid is topped by a clover-shaped knob with a pointed tip; a delicate coil on the hinge allows the lid to be opened easily. The handle, set well apart and shaped like a question mark, is carved from precious and rare solid violetwood; its sturdy upper fastening in silver, shaped like a stylized clover, contrasts with the delicacy of the one at the base. An exceptional coffee pot from the illustrious Puiforcat house, featuring an original shape and perfectly crafted with particularly refined details. Very good condition, minor exterior
