Description

Large vase in polished clear crystal and satin-finished frosted crystal by Marc LALIQUE, "Ingrid" model. Decorated with four large stylized leaves in relief, creating a contrast between the polished clear crystal and the satin-finished frosted crystal. Bears the signature engraved with a point: Lalique France. Circa 1970 Marc LALIQUE (1900-1977), son of René Lalique, began working with his father in 1922 and took over the company in 1945 upon his father's death. A consummate master of the art of glass, he knew every technical detail of the craft. He revitalized and modernized the company, which, in 1951, following the "L'Art du Verre" exhibition, established itself among the leading French and international crystal manufacturers. Marc LALIQUE was a designer gifted with a rare
