Description

Primitive Art: To be identified.An interesting painted terracotta mask featuring a stylized face with strongly defined features.The mask is particularly notable for its very prominent, almost beak-like nose, as well as for its black and beige geometric patterns arranged symmetrically on the cheeks.The reddish-brown, black, and ochre tones give it a lot of character and a beautiful decorative presence.Period: early to mid-20th century.Three old perforations at the chin, likely intended for attaching fiber or raffia elements that are now missing.Condition: some signs of wear, visible in the photographs. These marks are consistent with its age and contribute to its decorative appeal.Height: 23 cmWidth: 18 cmDepth: 10 cm.Weight: 662 grams.SHIPPING:To find out the shipping costs
